Multi-million dollar makeover

Province approves renovations for Park View

By STACEY COLWELL scolwell@southshorenow.ca

BRIDGEWATER — Park View Education Centre has received the green light from the province for a four-year, $13 million renovation project.

"This is very exciting for us as this school is at a point in its life time where it needs substantial renovations to update the building for current and future student needs," said South Shore Regional School Board superintendent Geoff Cainen in a December 23 press release.

"This major renovation will extend the building life for 20 years, and allow for future student and curriculum programming. As curriculum changes, so must our buildings to accommodate new requirements."

Last school year, the board announced it was applying to the provincial government for approximately $8 million worth of capital upgrades for Park View in 2013-14.

A report said the facility was built in 1978 and required upgrades in "almost every area," such as electrical, washrooms and locker rooms.

Last week, a spokeswoman for the Department of Education said Park View will receive approximately $13 million over four years for the renovations.

"Design and tendering will determine the final cost," said Michelle Lucas.

The provincial announcement came as part of a nearly $100 million capital education plan for 2014-15 which included building 10 new schools and renovating and improving 18 others.

"Schools across the province need funding for capital expenses," said South Shore Regional School Board chairwoman Jennifer Naugler.

"Maintaining our buildings is costly and support from the province for large projects such as this renovation is crucial."

CHESTER — Sometimes in life the best gift a person can receive is getting back something that was taken away from you, especially if you never expected to see it again.

That is especially true at Christmas time, when often, perhaps due to the magic of the season, miracles of this nature often seem to occur.

Chester residents Sam and Mary Lamey found that out first hand during a remarkable month of December which started out in disbelief and frustration when their home was broken into, robbed and vandalized, and culminated two days before Christmas in a happy ending.

"We were in Maine on vacation and it happened while we were away," Mr. Lamey recalled. "We got notified by our neighbours who were looking after the house. They went in on Wednesday and everything was fine, and then they went in the following Thursday and they found the place in a mess, trashed, and everything gone through."

The Lameys were in a restaurant December 5 when they received an e-mail from their neighbour asking them to call them right away.

Sexual assaults earn prison term

Man repeatedly molested best friend as she slept

By LISA BROWN

lbrown@southshorenow.ca

COUNTY — A Lunenburg County man is now in prison for repeatedly sexually assaulting his best friend as she slept next to her fiancé who happened to be his brother.

"It was the most egregious violation of a friendship, quite frankly, that I have ever seen or heard of," Judge Gregory Lenehan said in sentencing the 30 year old December 20 in Bridgewater provincial court.

"This is just beyond anything that I could have imagined."

The court heard that the crimes went on for nearly two years, between January 2009 and November 2010. The man and woman had been good friends for nearly a decade, but he secretly desired more from their relationship, even when she started dating and then living with his brother.

Crown attorney Sharon Goodwin said they would often binge drink or take drugs together. When the woman would go to bed, leaving her friend to sleep over at her house, he would sneak into her room and perform sexual acts, at least some of which he videotaped with his cellphone.

In November 2010, the woman awoke one night feeling like someone was touching her. She saw her friend lying on the floor on her side of the bed doing something with his cellphone. When he saw that she was awake, he left the house.

A few months later, the woman was using a laptop her friend had left at her home when she discovered a series of videos dating back to early 2009.

Those videos revealed him doing intimate things to her while she slept — digitally penetrating her, sucking on her breasts and masturbating next to her face.

Calling it a terrible breach of trust, Ms Goodwin asked the court to consider a two-year prison term.

"[She] was entitled to assume that she could go to bed in her family home without having these egregious sexual acts performed upon her while she was unconscious or sleeping," the Crown attorney said.

Defence lawyer Alan Ferrier said it was a very difficult case for all involved and his client is extremely remorseful.

He told the judge his client considered the woman his best friend and secretly loved her romantically, but was too shy to do anything about it for fear of being rejected and ruining their friendship. "It's not an excuse. In fact, it's what makes the case even sadder, that this friendship which was so near and dear to him has been destroyed and lost," Mr. Ferrier said.

Mr. Ferrier asked the court to consider a sentence of 90 days in jail to be served on weekends so his client could continue working.

Judge Lenehan rejected that outright, saying that would be "in no way proportionate to the gravity of the offence."

He read from a victim impact statement filed with the court in which the woman said she can't sleep, suffers nightmares and doesn't feel safe in her home or anywhere else. For some time, she slept fully clothed and her relationship with her fiancé was destroyed by what his brother had done to her.

"I still ask myself how could I let this happen. I blame myself, even though I know I shouldn't," she wrote.

"I'm afraid that I will never feel normal again."

While the man claimed he felt he was pleasing her with his actions, Judge Lenehan said it was clear it was all about his own sexual gratification. He also rejected the man's claims that he was too drunk or stoned to remember what he was doing, saying it took coordination to sneak into the woman's room, remove bedding and do what he did while also videotaping it all with his phone.

"[He] went into a bedroom where his brother was in the the bed with this woman, a very risky situation should his brother have arisen at any time that [he] was sexually molesting [his friend.] One can only imagine how many times [he] would have been bounced off the wall or gone out through a window," the judge said.

"But that risk didn't deter him. That risk was something that he was prepared to accept."

In the end, Judge Lenehan concluded a federal sentence was needed to give the man the time required to get needed treatment.

"I am concerned, sir, that you have deep-rooted issues," he said.

He added that it might also give the victim a sense of security she deserves and send a message to others.

"People need to understand that you cannot go into somebody's bedroom while they're sleeping and use them as your sexual toy. It shows a complete lack of respect for that individual, for her autonomy, for her dignity," Judge Lenehan said. He sentenced the man to serve two years in prison recommending he get immediate and ongoing counselling. That will be followed by two years on probation with continued counselling and no alcohol, drugs or weapons. The man is banned from having firearms for 10 years, must submit a DNA sample to the national data bank and must maintain registration with the national sex offender registry for 20 years. "You have destroyed your own life. You have destroyed [the victim's] life, her children's lives, your brother's life. You need help and I'm hoping this sentence will allow you to get that help immediately," Judge Lenehan said.

Teen warned to behave or face custody

By LISA BROWN lbrown@southshorenow.ca

COUNTY — A teen with a bad habit of taking things that don't belong to him got a last chance to turn himself around just before Christmas.

The 17 year old received six months of deferred custody December 20 when he was sentenced on three counts of theft and four counts of breaching court orders.

He was caught stealing tablets from Canadian Tire in late November, then taking personal care items from Sobeys on December 5 and blu-ray movies from Wal-Mart on December 11.

That was just two days after he was released from custody.

He was, by that point, on three probation orders as well as a court undertaking which included house arrest.

He told his legal aid lawyer he was trying to obtain Christmas gifts for his family.

"You dug yourself into a pretty deep hole," Judge Gregory Lenehan told the teen. "You've got to get out of the habit of taking what doesn't belong to you."

Although the Crown suggested time in custody, the judge instead gave the teen "one last chance" to prove himself after he'd spent 10 days in the youth centre.

While on the deferred custody order, the 17 year old must stay out of trouble and clear of drugs, weapons and anyone with a criminal record. He was ordered to stay away from the three stores and to maintain an 8 p.m. curfew unless with a parent.

"You understand that if you mess up on this deferred custody and supervision, the provincial director immediately will scoop you and put you back in Waterville," Judge Lenehan said.

Cherished stolen items returned to victims of theft

THEFT from A1

"It was an ominous kind of e-mail. You knew it was not good news," he said.

That was the second time the Lamey home had been broken into this year. Back in July, someone entered the house when Mr. Lamey was away sailing and Mrs. Lamev was at work.

That time they entered through a window and took a piggy bank full of Loonies and Toonies, which Mrs. Lamey said amounted to a considerable amount of money.

On that occasion, nothing else was touched.

With the most recent incident, however, the perpetrators went much further, taking with them a number of items that were of great sentimental value to the couple and which could never be replaced.

One of those was Mr. Lamey's wedding band, something he has worn for 37 years and had rarely taken off his finger.

Engraved with his and Mrs. Lamey's initials as well as their wedding date, the ring matches its twin which he presented to his wife as they exchanged vows back in 1976.

"Earlier this year the skin under my ring finger was breaking out, so I took it off to give it a break, and it was just one of those things that I never got around to putting it back on again," Mr. Lamey explained.

Also taken was a unique bottle of Montbeliard Pear wine made at the Lunenburg County Winery and dating back to 1999.

The bottle was given to the couple by Michael Baker, Mr. Lamey's partner in the law firm of Hennigar, Wells, Lamey and Baker, after being re-elected as MLA for Lunenburg in 1999. He later went on to serve in several cabinet positions with the provincial government, including Minister of Justice, before dying of cancer in 2009

"When they formed the government they must have had a limited edition run of wine and we got one," Mr. Lamey said. "We always thought we would drink it on some special occasion, but the special occasion never came. Then Mike got sick so we just thought we would keep it indefinitely just as a memento of Mike.³

Other things stolen in the break included some "not so special" bottles of alcohol and a fruit cake which Mrs. Lamey had made to honour a family tradition, which the thieves removed from the tin in which it was stored and oddly took the cake, leaving the container behind.

While those items were less significant, the ring and the bottle of wine have great sentimental value to the couple and they were both quite certain they would never see either of them again.

teenagers in connection with over 40 break-ins that had occurred in the Chester area dating back to early in the fall, including that in the Lamey home. A third teen was also later charged.

They will appear back in court in late January facing multiple counts of break and enter, possession of stolen property and possession of marijuana.

Remarkably, part of the stolen property which they had not yet been able to fence, included a certain wedding ring and a 1999 vintage bottle of wine.

Cst. Elliott VanDusen of Chester RCMP said that once the police found the bottle of wine in their search of a Highway 3 residence, they suspected the ring might not be too far behind.

"Because it was found and because I knew of its sentimental value to Sam, a call was made," Cst VanDusen said. "It couldn't be any more unique, there is no other ring like that in the world."

Ironically, that call, from Cpl. Jamie Vacon, came to the Lameys on the day of the arrest, right in the middle of the law firm's annual Christmas party.

The ring and the wine was later returned to the Lameys at the Chester RCMP detachment on December 23. "I would have to say I was ecstatic," Mrs. Lamey said. "When someone beaks into your house, you adjust to it in your own way, but one of the things that you say is 'I'm never going to see that again,' and these are two very special things to us."

Cst. VanDusen said that perpetrators of break and enters usually choose to steal articles that can be moved easily such as jewellery, electronics, sports memorabilia and items "that can be pawned of very quick.

"So we were actually very fortunate to get anything back really. Especially jewellery, like gold and stuff can be melted down really quick," he said. Mrs. Lamey said that since the break in, the couple have had an alarm system installed in their home and they will be more vigilant in future when it comes to protecting their home.

She also attended court during the three teens' first appearance on the charges and plans to follow their trials through to a conclusion.

"I wanted to put a face to the people, and you know, that's what the whole community wants to know. They want to put a face to these people," she said.

Cst. VanDusen said that for the police it is nice to see how their work affects the community and that at least on this occasion it paid off.

He cautioned, however that people must be careful to take steps to protect their property from thieves.

Painkiller addict put on probation

Man stole from family, friends to support habit

By LISA BROWN

lbrown@southshorenow.ca

COUNTY — A young man with no prior record who wracked up a string of crimes while trying to support a prescription drug habit will spend two years on probation.

The Crown was asking for more jail time when Jared Thomas Gordon Keeping was sentenced in Bridgewater provincial court December 20.

Instead, Judge Gregory Lenehan sentenced the 23 year old to the 86 days he'd served since his last arrest and sent him back into the community.

"Mr. Keeping, it's vitally important that you stay clean. Otherwise, Burnside could become painfully familiar to you," the judge said.

Between August 2012 and September of this year, Mr. Keeping stole medication that was meant for his father, charged nearly $2,500 to his grandmother's credit card, cheated a friend out of $500 in bail money and took his roommate's car without his permission.

He also stole from a Bridgewater grocery store, failed to attend court, damaged a house by driving the roommate's car into it, stole gas from a Hebbville service station and got caught with a prohibited sawed-off shotgun in the back of the same car.

After he was arrested in September, he couldn't get out of jail because no one would provide a surety for him.

In court December 20, legal aid lawyer Josh Nodel-man said "things simply spiralled out of control" for his client after he became addicted to prescription painkillers in his early 20s.

"It's a bunch of stupid stuff that a junkie does in the throes of addiction," Mr. Nodelman said. "Mr. Keeping is essentially one of the many faces of the scourge of prescription pill abuse in Lunenburg County."

While on probation, Judge Lenehan ordered Mr. Keeping to stay clear of alcohol, drugs, weapons and anyone with a criminal record. He must pay nearly $2,000 in restitution still owing and is banned from having firearms for five years.

Mr. Keeping must also submit a DNA sample to the national criminal data bank.

Dialysis unit announced for Bridgewater

By PAULA LEVY plevy@southshorenow.ca

BRIDGEWATER — South Shore Regional Hospital will be getting a new dialysis unit.

The announcement of the nine dialysis chairs in Bridgewater is part of a $5 million investment in 2014-15 to expand dialysis services in the province.

Department of Health spokesman Tony Kiritsis said there are many details left to be worked out before details of the plan for Bridgewater are revealed.

"Until the tendering process takes place many details such as cost, construction start and completion dates and other logistical details have yet to be determined," said Mr. Kiritsis.

In a news release before Christmas, Health Minister Leo Glavine said the new units will cut travel time to dialysis centres in the province.

'Many Nova Scotians are travelling to receive dialysis and we continue to look at ways to make it more accessible," said Mr. Glavine.

The province also announced that the Capital District Health Authority will be building a new 12-seat dialysis unit at the Halifax Infirmary. In addition to South Shore Health, new dialysis sites will be created in Kentville and Dartmouth.

Mr. Glavine added that the capital plan also includes $20 million to continue planning, building and repairing medical facilities including Bridgewater.

"We need to make improvements to our aging facilities to address the growing needs of patients," said Mr. Glavine.

The plan also includes more than $8 million for information technology projects, including developing a permanent adverse event reporting system. Other capital investments include $18 million to replace medical equipment and $5.6 million for ambulances.

Bridgewater authorizes proposal concerning plastic bag-related research

By KEITH CORCORAN kcorcoran@southshorenow.ca

BRIDGEWATER — Town council here will try and sign up Halifax university students participating in a Management Without Borders course to conduct research concerning plastic bags.

Civic politicians passed a motion directing staff to submit a proposal to Dalhousie University. Council will review the draft document before it's sent.

Since it'll be late 2014 before the next contingent of Management Without Borders students arrive at class, Bridgewater's potential prohibition on plastic bags may be many months away.

This summer council passed a motion directing staff to research and prepare a report and recommendation pertaining to a plastic bag ban or bylaw with a goal to approve a policy to take effect next year. The ultimate goal would be a socalled bring-your-own-bag bylaw or ban on plastic bags.

If a ban went into effect, Bridgewater would be the first town in Nova Scotia to institute the ban.

The town's strategic initiative co-ordinator has said Dalhousie University administrators believe research related to a potential plastic bag bylaw would be a good fit for the Management Without Borders program.

Management Without Borders students study social, economic, ecological, political and technological forces shaping 21st century leadership in the public, private and non-profit sectors. The students' Bridgewater work could include preparing a report on stakeholder responses and a best practices approach to plastic bag regulations.

Councillor Andrew Tanner has led the charge on the plastic bag ban issue.

A prohibition would reduce environmental and litter impacts associated with the production, use and disposal of single-use bags by motivating shoppers to carry reusable bags, Councillor Tanner has said.

Public opinion research shows most Canadians would favour a ban in their own communities.

Plastic bags have been known to plug pumps, intakes, air cooling lines and other municipal water services infrastructure.

Liquor stores and some grocery stores have stopped offering plastic bags.

Manitoba and Alberta carried through their own bans in 2007 and 2010, respectively.

Farming can be 'sexy,' Department of Agriculture official says

By KEITH CORCORAN kcorcoran@southshorenow.ca

COUNTY — The pursuit of raising livestock and growing crops can be sensual, exciting and a money-maker, an official with the province's Department of Agriculture suggests.

It's Brian MacCulloch's top three reasons to start a farm. Firstly, it's fun, a typical reaction the agricultural resource co-ordinator said he gets from Lunenburg County folks.

"This is a fun place to farm and not only fun, but it's a safe place, it's a good place," he told a recent meeting of Municipality of Lunenburg councillors.

He referred to a specific berry crop, direct-to-consumer sales, and other facets when he talked about the second reason. "Some people farm because it's sexy," Mr. Mac-Culloch explained. "Your farmers' markets, they're the cool thing to do. Haskap is sexy, growing grapes and running a winery or a brewery is a sexy thing."

Lastly, he said, many farms are profitable.

His presentation talked about how the number of farms, such as small farms, are on the rise in Lunenburg County. The numbers suggest more females are farming, as are more seniors.

Mr. MacCulloch talked about crops, including spikes in Christmas trees and low-bush blueberries, in addition to livestock and other aspects involving farming.

"You have good arable and that is available; lots of undeveloped and vacant Class 3 [soil]. Class 3 is very farmable land," Mr. MacCulloch said

He urged the Municipality of Lunenburg to be more aggressive and not wait farm.'

Lunenburg County YMCA

By KEITH CORCORAN kcorcoran@southshorenow.ca

BRIDGEWATER — While they came from distinct provinces and walks of life, local participants of a youth exchange involving YMCA's from Lunenburg County and Alberta suggest both sides had much in common in what was an enjoyable experience.

"I think the biggest thing we took away from the exchange was learning that although we came from different cultures we really weren't that different," Emma Sutherland, one of the participating youth, said during a recent YMCA presentation to Bridgewater Town Council.

"For the most part we liked the same music, we knew all the same bands and celebrities ... and we liked the same food. We had mutual interests.

A contingent of YMCA youth from Driftpile Cree First Nation led off the exchange with their multi-day visit to Lunenburg County this summer. Lunenburg County YMCA youth, roughly 20 of them, reciprocated later with their excursion to northern Alberta. Both hosts and guests followed busy schedules.

Not only did they learn about a new culture, some of the local youth had never been to that part of Canada before, Ms Sutherland said.

Another local YMCA youth, Tessa Vachon, indicated it was an adjustment.

"Some of their names were so different that we had to ask them how to pronounce them when we first met," she told councillors.

Despite some underlying anxiety about how well they'd get along or be liked, she added, everyone ended up having a lot of fun.

The goals were for each group to learn more about each other and their customs and to distribute that experience to their peers through presentations, pictures, videos and stories.

YMCA Youth Exchanges Canada, through funding from Ottawa, hosts exchanges for youth across Canada.

Bridgewater passes updated solid waste legislation

By KEITH CORCORAN kcorcoran@southshorenow.ca

BRIDGEWATER — Town council here passed the final reading of updated solid waste legislation that addresses administrative fines and curbside bag limits amongst other rules outlined in the separation, storage, placement, collection and transportation of discarded materials.

The bylaw is designed to promote compliance and incorporate better enforcement and education, among other things. Bridgewater's original bylaw was established in 1994, but officials believed it didn't do a good enough job addressing the requirements of waste separation.

Other Region 6 Solid Waste Management member municipalities in Lunenburg County — the Municipality of Lunenburg, Town of Mahone Bay and Municipality of Chester — are expected to pass similar rules.

Region 6 promotes proper waste sorting and diversion in 13 municipalities from Shelburne to West Hants through education and other outreach programs.

Bylaw violations can carry at least a $200 fine. If the ticket isn't paid, jail time of up to 30 days can be expected. Depending on whether or not there's compliance, fine values and jail time can escalate.

Other sanctions are also possible. The penalty for illegal dumping, for example, carries a fine of at least $1,000. Jail time of up to 90 days can occur if the ticket isn't paid.

Bridgewater also passed a policy statement establishing an enforcement procedure that supports education as a first step before prosecution.

What will the New Year bring?

s we turn the calendar and wonder at the mystery of yet another New Year, we understand that many challenges and opportunities await us in the next 12 months. We don't have a crystal ball, but if we did, there are many initiatives that we'd like to see come to fruition in 2014.

For starters, with the Yarmouth to Maine ferry service being reestablished and relaunching in May, we hope to see the tourism industry along the South Shore find a way to capitalize on this renewed economic opportunity. The past few years have been tough for tourism in the region, but with the new ferry we hope the industry will rebound and breath new life into the economy of southwest Nova Scotia.

We're also hoping that in 2014, the refurbished Bluenose II will finally set sail. After years of continued controversy it's vital that this once-proud vessel get back in the water and live up to its full potential. The famous schooner is important to all Nova Scotians, but it is an especially important part of Lunenburg's heritage and a vital part of the town's tourism industry. Besides, the legacy of the original schooner deserves better than the current political pawn the re-built vessel has become.

Looking ahead to the next 12 months, we also hope to see the complete opening of the Lunenburg County Lifestyle Centre so that the facility can live up to its full potential. Local residents have been waiting for many years for this facility and governments have invested millions of dollars into making it a reality. Now the dream is almost fulfilled with the arena having been opened this fall and the new library opening this month. While there is no official word on the opening of the last major component, the aquatic centre, we anticipate that facility will be ready soon and the entire facility will become a major asset to the community.

We are really excited about the steps being taken toward reinvigorating Bridgewater's downtown. We understand this is a long-term project that will cost large sums of money, but at least there is a plan afoot to revitalize the area. As we know, many small towns in rural Canada are struggling to survive and while many of the plans being discussed could be years away from fruition, the on-going dialogue provides hope for future prosperity and encourages us to look forward with renewed hope.

Speaking of revitalization, we look forward to the new tenants coming to Bridgewater Mall. In recent years, we've seen one tenant after the other leave the mall and when Zellers closed last spring, it left a major void in the commercial sector, but as the New Year begins, renovation is underway and several new tenants have been announced, all of which is good news for the community.

Last year, Nova Scotians went to the polls and elected a new Liberal government. Next up will be a federal election and with scandals plaguing the Harper Conservatives, we can't help but wonder if we will also see a changing of the guard at the federal level. With that, in the coming months, we should anticipate candidates emerging for the next federal election as each of the parties gear up for October 19, 2015, unless Harper calls a snap election, but don't count on it. Locally, right now, the big question on everyone's mind is will Gerald Keddy seek another term in office? Stay tuned as the political heat is about to ramp up.

Provincially, there are lots of issues on the table and as the new Liberal government grapples with a major budget crisis we should anticipate lots of upheaval and political wrangling. We should also expect the highly contentious school review process to be back in the news as the Department of Education looks for public input to make it less confrontational and more inclusive. Although it doesn't seem likely, for the coming year at least, we would like to see funding announced for a new school to replace Pentz and Petite, as per the school board's request.

On the municipal level, we would encourage all councils in Lunenburg County to continue working toward improved co-operation and more shared services. In this day of shrinking population but rising costs and taxpayer expectations, it is now more vital than ever that municipal governments move forward together.

On the economic front, we would hope that local retailers continue to do business amid a changing marketplace that sees increased competition from the big box outlets in Metro and from on-line shopping, both of which create a major challenge for the rural marketplace. However, it behooves all of us to support our community shops and stores, as they are vital to the survival of the region's economy and culture.

On a more personal note, we hope everyone has a healthy, prosperous and happy New Year.

- Vernon Oickle

The dawn of a new day s most of my regular readers will know, I am fascinated with superstitions and old wives' tales.

Not so much because I consider myself to be a superstitious person (although I don't walk under ladders, I avoid black cats and cringe at the thought of breaking a mirror), but because I consider such folklore to be part of our Maritime traditions and heritage.

These superstitious are actually a throwback to earlier generations. They remind us of a time when life seemed simpler and the people looked to the heavens and to the land for clues about their environment, and they studied other natural things such as the behaviour of birds, animals and plants for signs that might help them understand more about the world in which they eked out a mostly

• The first person you kiss after midnight on New Year's Eve will be true to you for the next 12 months.

• To ensure that you will have food throughout the coming year, make sure your cupboards are not empty when the New Year arrives.

• If the first person to enter your house after midnight on New Year's Eve has dark hair, then your household will be blessed with good luck for the next year. However, if that person has blonde or red hair, then bad luck will follow you throughout the year.

tears throughout the year.

• To break something made of glass on New Year's Day means your heart will break by the end of the New Year.

• Babies born on January 1 are said to always have good luck.

• It is good luck to dance in the open air and especially around a tree on New Year's Day.

• In some homes, on New Years Eve, dishes of fresh fruit are set out as an "offering" and as a means to invite good luck into the home throughout the year.

• It is a good thing to make loud noises on New Year's Eve as it is said that will scare away the evil spirits from entering your home in the next year.

• It is said that the direction the wind is blowing during sunrise on the morning of the New Year will tell you about the coming year. If the wind is blowing from the south, it means fine weather and prosperous times lay ahead while wind from the north foretells bad weather. An easterly wind suggests lots of bad weather in the New Year and wind from west foretells your cupboards will be full throughout the year, but there will be a death in the family or someone you know. No wind means joy and prosperity throughout the year. It also means there will be no major storms during the coming year. It is also said that you can ensure yourself good fortune by drinking the last drop from the bottle on New Years Eve.

TO THE EDITOR

Let's get educated before the next federal election

ost of us growing up in Canada have taken our electoral and parliamentary systems for granted. We elected men and women and entrusted them to do what was right — to safeguard, to reform, to show the way for a just and fair society. We did not always agree or understand, but felt that somehow we were in safe hands.

The last few years have shown that this may be no longer true. There are warning signs of the fragility of our democracy.

Could we have a forum for discussion through this local paper? We have expertise among the readership to help us become knowledgeable before the next federal election.

Might I suggest exploring Canadian governance — our parliamentary system — the history and role of the Senate and the House of Commons? What are provincial and federal jurisdictions? How were transfer payments to work? What is the role of the unions in our society? How do we address inequality in pay and poverty?

What policies do we want in place regarding universal health care, the environment, sustainable development?

A column a week starting soon could make a difference. Any takers?

Don't skip your health appointment recently went to the Miramachi hospital in New Brunswick to visit a patient. I noted a poster in the window of a clinic which stated that patients who did not show up for their scheduled appointment cost the health system money. In the previous month, 19 patients had not shown up while there was a sixweek wait to get in the clinic.

This same scenario happens in every clinic or scheduled service in Nova Scotia. Further, some patients when called for their scheduled service or operation say the time is not convenient as they are going on vacation, it's Christmas time, etc.

Yes, the system is working to improve wait times and there are system problems to be fixed, but individuals have a responsibility as well. They also have taken an appointment time away from an individual who would be quite willing to have their procedure done.

I believe fully in the public health system but perhaps we should start thinking about charging a fee to those individuals who cause a wasting of funds unnecessarily.

Sports stars shone in 2013

By STACEY COLWELL scolwell@southshorenow.ca

From standing on the podium at the Canada Games, to winning national titles, participating in world games, being named provincial player of the year or turning pro, Lunenburg County athletes shone in 2013.

Twenty of the brightest stars, in no particular order, included:

• Alex Duckworth: A Kingsburg native and 2014 Olympic snowboard hopeful, she was nominated as Nova Scotia's female athlete of the year and placed sixth overall during a recent World Cup event in Finland.

• Tobias Wolter: The Conquerall Mills native medalled at the Canadian youth track and field championships and represented his country at the world youth championships.

• Alex Mann: A defenceman from Lunenburg who plays hockey for Milton Academy outside Boston, he represented Team Atlantic at the world under-17 hockey challenge last January.

• Rebecca Weagle: Another Lunenburg native, she was named top goalie at the Canadian midget AAA female national hockey championships and currently plays for Saint Marys University.

· Zack Zinck: He was named Baseball Nova Scotia's minor league player of the year after allowing only 23 hits and seven earned runs while striking out 90 in 52 Bantam AAA innings with the Bridgewater Bulldogs and pitching at the nationals with the provincial team.

• Matt Taylor: Former Canada Games athlete from West LaHave attends the Royal Military College and represented his country last summer at the world university games with the rugby sevens team.

• Brennan Bailey: The Lunenburg native and South Shore Mustangs' all-time leading scorer among defencemen raised the Memorial Cup last spring as a member of the Halifax Mooseheads national championship team.

 Mattias Wolter: This Conquerall Mills track star capped his junior season at the University of Louisville by earning All-American honours in the 3,000-metre steeplechase, and later won a gold medal at the Canada Games.

• Jenna Martin: A 2012 Olympian from Bridgewater, she was the lone Nova Scotian to earn a spot on Team Canada for the 2013 world track and field championships.

• Shyanne Mossman: Won a bronze medal at the national biathlon championships. The Riverport resident is a prospective member of the 2015 Nova Scotia Canada Games team.

· Jesse Drennan: A Lunenburg decathlete who won gold at the Canada Games and was an All-Canadian for the University of Windsor.

Ross Farm nearing fundraising goal for learning centre

By PAULA LEVY plevy@southshorenow.ca

NEW ROSS — The Ross Farm Museum is inching closer to its $3.6 million fundraising goal to build the Ross Farm Museum Learning Centre.

57 KING STREET, CHESTER

The learning centre will be built on the site of the current museum entrance and gift shop and will have the appearance of a big barn. It will consist of public space, including a foyer, programming rooms, washrooms, meeting rooms, an open-hearth room, a commercial kitchen, a gift shop, an office for the local historical society, research space and climate controlled storage for artifacts.

The building's upper level will house administrative space, a staff kitchen, a first-aid room and space for the production and storage of period costumes.

In a release, museum director Lisa Wolfe said the local and capital campaigns have together reach $1.014 million of the combined $1.5 million it needs. ACOA and the province have each committed $1 million, the Municipality of Chester, $100,000 leaving about $486,000 left to raise.

The local campaign was tasked with raising $100,000. That committee began its work in September and has raised $74,991 to date.

"We are three-quarters of the way to our goal. We need to finish off the campaign in early January so keep those donations coming," she said.

Its capital campaign, which is tasked with raising $1.4 million, has raised $939,265 to date.

"It is looking very good to be digging in the early spring 2014," added Ms Wolfe.

BUSINESS

Home-based business now stands on its own

By PAULA LEVY plevy@southshorenow.ca

After being let go from her two previous jobs, Kate Cocks took it as a sign that she was getting the push she needed to set out on her own. Although she has always wanted to be her own boss, Ms Cocks really had no idea what that would mean.

"I always had in my mind that I wanted to work for myself, but I never knew what it was that I wanted to do, really," she said. The dream was always on the back burner because Ms Cocks had two children and a mortgage, and the thought of giving up a secure paycheque was frightening.

"As often is the case, life gives you the nudge that you need in order to end up doing what you're supposed to be doing and I got fired," she said about the secure paycheque. Luckily she found another job, but lost that one too.

"Finally, I realized that I'm not listening. Opportunity is knocking and I'm not listening," said Ms Cocks. At the same time Jo-Ann's market in Mahone Bay was about to open for the season. She approached Jo-Ann and asked if she would like to carry baked goods in the market.

An order was placed for a dozen blueberry muffins.

"I went home and thought, 'I'd better figure out how to make those really big muffins.' I took her in a dozen muffins. They sold really well," said Ms Cocks. That dozen muffins grew to a two dozen order and before long, the order was expanding to other baked goods.

Eventually, Ms Cocks was supplying Jo-Ann's Market with scones, oatcakes, cookies, cheesecakes and squares.

'When I started back then, there was no internet ... so I used to go to the library and borrow cookbooks ... and cooking magazines," said Ms Cocks. "There was a lot of searching, a lot of reading, a lot of experimentation to come up with the various recipes that I'm actually still using to this day."

While she perfected her recipes, Ms Cocks continued to supply Jo-Ann's market and happily worked out of her own home. She had one domestic oven and one fridge but managed to meet the orders.

"After the first year of working with Jo-Ann I said it was time to stop looking for a job and get serious," said Ms Cocks. She expanded the kitchen in her home to accommodate a second used domestic oven, a larger refrigerator and a commercial mixer

The next thing she knew, someone asked if Ms Cocks could cater a wedding lunch. She responded, "Yes." Although she had never catered before, she thought, "How hard could it be?"

That first event had 19 guests and when she was asked to cater for 50 people, she simply responded again with a yes.

"All of the things that came along, I always said yes," said Ms Cocks. And, as her business expanded, she needed more space and before she knew it, she had also taken over the dining room in her house. She was finding herself so overwhelmed she also needed to hire a couple of staff to help.

Eventually. Ms Cocks also needed to invest in commercial ovens to keep up the pace.

Since Ms Cocks had been operating the business out of her Martins River home, she was finding that the home-based business was beginning to take its toll.

'Running a business in your home gets to be difficult because there is no downtime and there is no place to go to get away from work because you are living at work," she said."For 13 or 14 years I was living at work and that gets very hard.'

She feels that fate was again giving her a nudge when Jo-Ann decided she was no longer outsourcing baked goods.

"I had anticipated that this would happen. It seemed like a natural evolution for her and it was something that she wanted to do. I was perhaps already thinking about having a retail location of my own," said Ms Cocks.

She started looking for a place to open and she found her current location on Lincoln Street in Lunenburg. Not only was she going to have a place where she could go to work every morning, but she could also get into retail and open a cafe to sell coffee, light lunches and sweets.

"Just moving here to this space in Lunenburg, I've got my home back. I get up in the morning and I go to work and then I leave work and I go home. And that to me was really invaluable. I don't think I could have kept on going the way I was much longer."

Ms Cocks has been able to evolve and grow her business because she has never been afraid of change, risk and she always said yes to customer requests.

"I'm ignorant enough that I'm not afraid of risk," she laughed. "I think if you educate yourself about all the possibilities and everything that could happen and could go wrong, you'd probably never do anything."

From a basket of a dozen blueberry muffins baked in the kitchen in her home, Ms Cocks grew a catering business that now has its own home — Kate's Sweet Indulgence Catering and Cafe.

Kate Cocks started with a dozen blueberry muffins and today she owns Kate's Sweet Indulgence Catering and Cafe in Lunenburg.

Seaside Shanty up for sale

By PAULA LEVY plevy@southshorenow.ca

The Seaside Shanty restaurant is now for sale. After owning the restaurant for eight years Jillian McKenzie said it was time to focus on family.

"I've got a four year old that starts school next season so that means she's down to July and August and those are my two busiest months. I won't have any time for her. I think I just had to make the choice to focus on the family stuff," said Ms McKenzie.

The decision to sell did not come easy. Ms McKenzie said over the past eight years she has put a lot of work into the restaurant to continually build business.

'It's sad. It's probably one of the most difficult decisions I've ever had to make. But I've done what I set out to do to bring the restaurant back to a successful business," said Ms McKenzie, noting the 2013 season was the best the restaurant has seen since she became its owner.

When the Nova Scotia native bought the restaurant that's been in Chester Basin for over 20 years, it did not have hands-on owners for 12 years. She said the restaurant really needed a hands-on owner.

At the time of purchase, Ms McKenzie was living and working in Vancouver. When she visited her Annapolis Valley family, the restaurant was up for sell.

"I've always wanted to be, not necessarily in the restaurant business, but the hospitality business. I always wanted to try my hand at that. Being an accountant, you're stuck to a desk but I always loved people," said Ms McKenzie.

She bought the iconic restaurant that is known for its seafood-focused menu, especially its seafood chowder. She said the success is in no small part due to a new chef that was hired a couple of years ago along with their welcoming staff and picture-perfect view.

Ms McKenzie said she is hopeful the restaurant will sell before its next season in May. She said she's already had a lot of interest but she has yet to set a price. If the business is not sold privately by the end of January, she plans to list it.

"I am going to be selective in who I sell it to. I've put a lot of work into it. ... I'm hoping that whoever buys it, will try and keep it the way it is. ... That's what people like," she added.

Going way back in a time machine

DIANE LYNN

TIBERT

Roots to the Past

ve never been a Dr. Who fan, but my brother was, so I've witnessed many episodes on our television when I was a kid. Don't get me wrong; the idea of time travel appealed to me. I was fascinated with astronomy and was a dedicated watcher of "Voyagers," the one-hour show starring the late Jon-Erik Hexum, Hexum and his sidekick used a pocket-watch style time machine to travel through time and "fix" history.

As a genealogist, I wish I had a pocket watch that could deliver me to the past. I could visit my ancestors and interview them, getting the facts that elude me because no records exist for them. It would sort out mysteries that have stumped me for decades. I'd sneak along my camera and take pictures of them and their communities. I'd have the best genealogy in the world.

More recently there have been times I wished I could travel to the not too distance past to recapture or reexamine records I've found on the internet that are no longer available. Everyone keeps saying, "When it's on the web, it's there forever."

But this simply isn't true for some things that are deleted and lost to time.

That is unless it spent enough time on the web to leave a footprint.

Shortly after I tried and failed to locate Lost at Sea, that wonderful web site that had extensive information on sailors from Atlantic Canada who were lost as sea or miraculously saved, I discovered something wonderful — a time machine for the internet.

Officially it's known as the Wayback Machine (http://web.archive. org), a web site that archives the internet. The only thing you need to know to rediscover an old site is the old web address.

In the case of Lost at Sea I had the old address as www.lostatsea. ca. If you enter this address in the Wayback Machine, it takes you to August 21, 2013, where it states the time machine saved a snapshot of this web site 257 times since June 5, 2001. From the calendar it appears the Lost at Sea web site operated between mid-2001 and late 2006. The most activity occurred in 2005.

To visit this site in its past state, click on a year and then choose a date from the full-year calendar which appears below. In the case of many web sites, the best option might be to choose the most recent snapshot, just before the site went defunct. Usually this was when it held the most information. After choosing a date from the calendar, you'll find yourself back in time, surfing the old web site as if it was still functioning. In most cases the images and links are just as they were. The only difference is the web address in the browser and the addition of the Wayback Machine power bar that allows you to choose other dates if the one you've selected doesn't contain what you remember.

Webpages within the Wayback Machine can be linked too, just like any other internet page.

The Wayback Machine does not take a snapshot of actual web site updates, so updates may have occurred and been deleted without being captured. For more information about using the Wayback Machine, including how it captures web sites and why it can't capture all web sites, check out the FAQ page.

Great backyard bird count ark on your calendars the date for the 2014 Great Backyard Bird Count, which will be held from February 14 to 17.

This is where you can count the birds that you see from the comforts of your home or wherever you might be. If you take a walk down the road or in the park you can count for that location. Make note of the habitat and count the birds that you see by species and number.

If at home, and you see three black-capped chickadees in the morning and four in the afternoon, you count four only. Also, make a note of the time that you spent counting. A minimum of 15 minutes is required. If you have a computer go to http://www. birdsource.org/gbbc and this is where you can enter your data. If not, give me a call with the information that you have gathered and I will enter it for you.

As I mentioned in a previous column, there has been the largest influx of snowy owls in history to Nova Scotia. These owls continue to be seen and reported. Snowy owls are typically found in the Arctic and rarely are seen south of the Great Lakes. They've come down to the eastern United States in greater numbers than at any time in the last 50 years. A friend in Florida has advised me that they have even reached there and reports have come in from as far away as Bermuda.

An interesting story that I read, posted by Hans Toom, has a lesson surrounding it. The setting is a community named Mount Hanley, but this could very well happen anywhere.

It was unusual balmy weather and a woman decided that she would put the Christmas turkey outside on the front porch overnight to thaw. After all what could go wrong? Well the next morning three-quarters of the turkey was gone, in the belly of a contented bald eagle.

Brenda Hebb of Hebbville was pleased to have an American wigeon. A friend at work, named Bernie told me about how a number of American robins are flying through a hole in her barn every evening and are taking refuge in a hay bale there. These robins then fly out in the morning. An interesting event that happened to me a number of weeks ago was seeing thousands of crows in the sky by the Cineplex Theatre in Bridgewater. These American crows are gathering across the street from the theatre and fly at dusk to an unknown location to their winter roost. They must have been late going or something scared them as it was after dark and when I looked up, not far above my head, the sky was black with crows. It was like a scene out of the Alfred Hitchcock movie "The Birds."

At Rhodes Corner, Mandy Eisenhauer reported a pileated woodpecker calling and hammering away behind her house. Mandy also has had a few purple finches, a red-breasted nuthatch and the occasional evening grosbeak. Allan Tobacca has had a nice assortment of birds this year as compared to last year at Western Shore. He now has three pairs of northern cardinals visiting his backyard.

Helen Forrest also has a male northern cardinal still tending at her feeder in Clear-land, but the Baltimore oriole has not been seen since the last major storm, so it might not have survived. David Walmark saw a northern harrier at Conrads Island in Lower Rose Bay.

When Steven Hiltz was out and about, he spotted 20 American robins at Second Peninsula. An amazing 315 of these birds were found during the White Point Christmas Bird Count. Steven also saw an American woodcock, which flew across the road at Northwest. At Maders Cove, Jean Spidle watched a red-tailed hawk. This is the first time she has noticed one of these hawks there.

From Mahone Bay, American tree sparrows, were joined by white-throated sparrows and song sparrows at the yard of Joyce Allen. Joyce also has a pair of northern cardinals coming daily and a pair of purple finches. A northern flicker also arrived. Barrows goldeneyes, comprised of two males and a female, were a nice find by me at Middle LaHave. The LaHave River is nicely iced over, but there are still some open areas close to the road, where ducks are now gathering, and the different species can be easily observed.

Local amateur gastronome to compete for 'Masterchef Canada' title

By ROBERT HIRTLE rhirtle@southshorenow.ca

A LaHave resident is one of 50 amateur chefs in the country who have been selected to compete for the title of Masterchef Canada for 2014.

Trevor Jessome, a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force who has been overseas numerous times, will vie for the honour on the CTV network television show which begins airing January 20.

According to the CTV web site, Masterchef is now produced in over 40 countries and watched in over 200 territories world-wide.

The Canadian version will keep with other formats and see contestants facing individual and team cooking challenges that will result in one, or more, cooks being eliminated each week.

Mr. Jessome is described on the web site as a self-taught chef "who feels his food is elegant and artistic.

"At home, he and his wife host dinner parties as often as they can — and almost everyone leaves wondering when Trevor will open a restaurant."

His signature dish is pan broiled boneless leg of lamb in herb crust with ribbons of yellow zucchini, and red onion, cherry tomato and kale pesto gnocchi.

Making Merry

The trio of Clas Larsson on saxophone, Tim Worthington on bass and Jordi Comstock on drums provided some festive sounds for shoppers at the final Lunenburg Farmers' Market of 2013 which was held at the Lunenburg community centre December 19.

'It's All About Her' to benefit breast cancer

By ROBERT HIRTLE rhirtle@southshorenow.ca

BRIDGEWATER — An evening of music and song has been planned to bring people together to support physical, mental and emotional health for women and raise funds to support the fight against breast cancer.

"It's All About Her" will be held at the Best Western Bridgewater Hotel and Suites January 11 beginning at 7 p.m.

The evening will feature the talents of singersongwriters Irish Mythen, Laura Smith and Dana Beeler. as well as a pre-show zumba exercise demonstration and silent auction.

Organizer Gary Lohnes says he has long been in awe of the courage and strength shown by women in times of dire distress.

"Career women, stay-at-home moms. mothers and sisters alike," he explains. "These attributes have inspired me to want to acknowledge the mental, physical and emotional strengths of women and at the same time raise money to help them overcome one of the terrible diseases that women face, breast cancer."

Mr. Lohnes says his goal for the show was to bring together a selection of musicians that would showcase many of the amazing qualities women possess.

"Seeing Irish Mythen play at the Kempt Shore Festival, I thought the life and fire in her music was perfect and I knew then I needed her to be part of this event," Mr. Lohnes recalls. "I never dreamed of having a Canadian icon on the bill, but after a chance encounter with Laura Smith she instantly supported the cause and made herself available."

Mr. Lohnes also felt that the passion and feeling found in the music of Ms Beeler "was perfect to round out the evening.

"I am confident you will agree that the performers that have been assembled will more than adequately showcase the power and emotion of the female spirit."

Folk Harbour hosts pair of concerts live music

By ROBERT HIRTLE rhirtle@southshorenow.ca

The Lunenburg Folk Harbour Society will ring in the New Year in fine style with a pair of concerts that will surely help take away those winter blahs.

The fun begins January 18 with a Celtic Circle featuring the talents of Cassie Ann and Maggie Mac-Donald, Anna Ludlow and Décota McNamara.

The MacDonalds, who are no strangers to Folk Harbour audiences through their performances with Finnan Haddie, stay true to their Celtic roots in their fiddle and keyboard repertoire which is coupled with come impressive stop densing noted performers as The Beach Boys, Blue Rodeo and Ron Hynes and also performed at the Vancouver Winter Olympics, on Parliament Hill in Ottawa and at Dollywood in Tennessee.

Mr. McNamara is an up-and-coming East Coast musician who intricately mixes blues, country and Celtic music, moving effortlessly between acoustic and electric guitar, banjo, mandolin and dobro.

Celtic Circle will take place at the Pearl Theatre in Lunenburg starting at 7:30 p.m.

The month's second concert event will be held January 25 at Lunenburg's historic Boscawen Inn when Folk Harbour will present an Intimate Eve-

CULTURE, CUISINE & COMMUNITY

Recipes for resolution

ou've probably made your New Year's resolutions already (unless "make resolutions in a timely manner next year" is on the list!) but there are a few simple guidelines for eating that you might like to add to guarantee a happier, healthier 2014.

1. Eat more food grown right here in Nova Scotia. To find it, visit a farmers' market, a farm market, or ask for it at your grocery store.

2. Take some time on the weekends (not every weekend, but some of them) to cook ahead for the week. You'll end up eating more nutritious home-cooked food and almost certainly save money.

3. Eat more fruits and vegetables. One of the best ways to do this is to plan entrees with vegetables as the main ingredients and a bit of meat as flavouring, rather than the other way around. Examples include a pepper, carrot and onion stir fry flavoured by spicy ground beef, or a celery and potato stew with some crumbled bacon.

4. Grow a little something of your very own. If you've never gardened before, you can start with some herbs in a pot in the windowsill. If you already grow some of your own food, try adding a new vegetable this year.

5. Try a few exciting new foods and cooking methods. Life is short and the world is large. There's more to explore in food than you'll ever get to. Don't know where to get started? Keep your eye on this column — I'll introduce some ideas throughout the year.

If you need some inspiration to kick-start your healthy eating in the meantime, then these two flavourful veggie soups will please your tongue and fill your tummy. Spinach Curry Soup

> milk (either regular or light) Directions

Heat the butter in a large saucepan on medium. Add minced onions and salt and sauté until the onions are translucent. Add the garlic, ginger, coriander, turmeric and cayenne and sauté for another two minutes.

Stir in the stock and spinach and bring to a boil. Reduce heat slightly and simmer for 10 minutes or until spinach is thoroughly cooked but still a bright shade of green. Remove from heat and blend, either with an immersion blender or remove to a stand blender and then return to a clean pan. Simmer the purée another couple of minutes, blend in coconut milk and serve. Vegetable Borscht

This is a light, fresh version of what was once a heavy winter dish. The delightful assortment of vegetables are all available from Nova Scotia producers in the winter.

Ingredients

- 8 cups chicken or vegetable broth
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 6 large beets, peeled and chopped
- 4 large carrots, peeled and chopped
- 2 cups finely chopped cabbage
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/4 cup minced fresh dill or parsley
 Salt and pepper to taste

Plain Greek yogurt to taste (optional)
Directions

Combine broth, onion, beets, carrots and cabbage in a stock pot. Bring to a simmer over medium low heat and cook 30 minutes. Add cabbage and lemon juice and simmer until cabbage is tender, about 15 minutes. Add minced herbs, salt, and pepper. Stir in yogurt and serve immediately.

Landowner anticipates legal action if municipality develops public properties off private roads

to court."

Larry Hagell

Maplewood resident

By KEITH CORCORAN kcorcoran@southshorenow.ca

COUNTY — A Maplewood landowner may not be alone in seeking legal action if the Municipality of Lunenburg pursues developing public properties off private roads.

"I'll take this right to court," Larry Hagell told southshorenow.ca and the Lunenburg County Progress Bulletin in a recent interview. "The other road associations have already gone to lawyers about this because they don't want it; because of the private road issue."

Mr. Hagell is a Gilberts Lane resident, in the area where one of the so-called public open space properties is located. The municipally-owned land, less than a hectare in size, is situated at the corner of Birch Hill Road and Gilberts Lane. The property in question is in the Sherbrooke Lake area but isn't a waterfront lot.

Mr. Hagell showed southshorenow. ca and the Lunenburg County Progress Bulletin documents he claims backs up the purpose of such open space properties, of which there are dozens scattered throughout the municipality.

"Even though the reality of the law says it's municipal property and I understand that," Mr. Hagell said, "but the approach on it and intended use is something else."

He'd never heard of the establishment of a public park off private roads within a subdivision. He believes developing the Birch Hill Road lot could impede the lifestyle private road landowners are used to enjoying and doubts such a feature could be adequately controlled.

"Why are we going through all of this when basically the municipality should put in a proper park on Sherbrooke Lake for the public to use," Mr.

Hagell said.

There's an ongoing debate concerning dozens of publicly-owned properties located off private roads that were acquired via the subdivision bylaw. Arguably, the underlying issue is differing opinions on intent and a lack of specific legalese that would clear up any misunderstandings. The municipality plans to establish a divestiture policy in 2014, which some politicians think will clarify the issue.

One councillor has said the lots were put in the municipality's name "in trust" for use in the subdivisions.

Some councillors believe public open space lands in the municipality's control mean they're open for anyone to frequent. There are private road landowners and road maintenance organizations that don't support use of such roads to get to those properties.

Recently, Blue Rocks

area Councillor Errol Knickle wanted, but failed, in an attempt to get an independent fact-finder appointed to delve into matters of the subdivision bylaw, public open space properties and any associated deals between the municipality and land developers.

Dayspring area Councillor Frank Fawson at one time put forward a motion, later reneging on it, that, if passed, would have announced the municipality's intentions to sell the public open space lands off private roads.

Councillor Terry Dorey, whose constituency includes the Sherbrooke Lake area, had also failed in an attempt to have his colleagues investigate the possibilities of developing three municipal open space properties, including the Birch Hill Road lot in Maplewood, with the intent of providing public access to the lake. None of the properties actually front Sherbrooke Lake.

"It's very difficult, actually, to move some of these numbers forward, and I'll be honest with you, I'll be jumping for joy if we can make those 10 per cent gains. Those are really significant numbers," said superintendent Geoff Cainen during a recent meeting.

"However, a goal or an outcome should push you. You shouldn't be comfortable in thinking well one or two per cent we can cruise for a year or two and make it. That's not good enough."

Regardless, he cautioned none of the measures in the draft report were set in stone and that they could change.

The plan also included outcomes practices as indicated through surveys and minutes of collaborative learning teams.

• Self-identified African Nova Scotian and first nations students to show increased achievement levels.

• An increased number of students meeting or exceeding provincial reading benchmarks.

• Students from Grades 7 through 12 to show they are intellectually engaged in their learning at a rate 10 per cent above the national average.

In addition, the report had major goals to remove barriers for a safe and healthy environment, and to promote and strengthen partnerships and community engagement.

Mr. Cainen said staff and elected board members expect to solicit public feedback before finalizing the longrange strategic plan.

DON'T FORGET

Like your presence is so near, And I close my eyes to visualize Your face when you were here.

I endure the times we spent together And they are locked inside our hearts, For as long as we have those memories We will never be apart. Even though we cannot speak no more always

Óur voice is there, Because every night before we sleep We have you in our prayers. Greatly missed and never forgotten, love Samantha, Adain, Don and Nadine and Adam.

Card of Thanks

The family wish to thank Rev. Catharine House for her comforting words; the ladies auxiliary of Italy Cross, Middlewood & District Fire Department for hosting the reception following the funeral; the pallbearers; the phone calls, flowers, cards, donations and food given to the family. A special thanks to Hillside Pines for the excellent care given to our singer, Marguerite.

Ask the Hearing Expert

with Stephanie MacLeod, Clinical and Dispensing Audiologist

Q: Is there a relationship between hearing loss and dementia?

More research is required but initial findings at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine suggest three theories:

1. Hearing impaired people tend to isolate themselves and this social isolation is a leading risk factor for dementia.

2. Hearing impaired people strain to decode sound causing a cognitive overload which, over time, may leave them vulnerable to dementia.

Burst water pipe results in $14,500 in repairs

By KEITH CORCORAN kcorcoran@southshorenow.ca

PINE GROVE — The cost is a fivefigure sum to fix the mess inside the main building of a Pine Grove golf club caused by a burst water pipe.

The repair estimate is $14,500, Tammy Wilson, the Municipality of Lunenburg's chief administrator, said in a recent e-mail to southshorenow.ca and the Lunenburg County Progress Bulletin.

Restoration and insurance officials were surveying the damage in the days following the December 15 occurrence at the Harold Whynot Road building. Commenting after the incident, Ms Wilson anticipated repairs would happen over several days. A cold snap in Lunenburg County at the time was a factor in the failure of a third floor water pipe near a bathroom. It's believed the running water impacted the building's alarm system, prompting a response from the fire department, which discovered water pouring into the building and flowing down through light fixtures. The municipality, seeking a commercial real estate brokerage service to assist in the sale of the property, assumed control of the golf property in 2011 after the society operating the golf course defaulted on its mortgage payments. On-line property records show Osprey Ridge is about 83 hectares in size and assessed at $2.26 million. The golf course has hosted a provincial amateur and a pair of national tournaments in the last several years.

Landowner gets six more months to deal with First South property

By KEITH CORCORAN kcorcoran@southshorenow.ca

COUNTY — Peter Lowry has six more months to deal with auto parts and other materials on his First South property that the Municipality of Lunenburg has deemed unsightly.

Civic politicians recently passed a motion extending the deadline of a municipal order on Mr. Lowry to remove materials in question from his one-hectare-size Highway 332 property. Council's motion offered extra time for him to either remove the items or provide acceptable concealment.

The municipal order called for the disposal of "two derelict vans," automobile components and other "junk."

Some, but not all, of the items in question were cleaned up, municipal building official, Michael Bevis indicated during a recent informal meeting of Municipality of Lunenburg councillors where Mr. Lowry's hearing was dealt with. Mr. Lowry appealed the order.

The materials are not junk but "recyclable steel and aluminum commodities," Mr. Lowry told the hearing. His goal is to dispatch the material as circumstances permit, not store them.

The building official viewed circumstances differently. "He says it's a commodity-driven process. In my opinion it's a bunch of junk. It's old car parts, period. That's the way I look at it," Mr. Bevis explained.

"You're talking legal here with lawyers and that. I don't want to go there at all."

The vehicles serve a storage purpose, Mr. Lowry added. "I consider these two vehicles as a mobile woodshed which contain my firewood that I drive and park at the rear of my home each heating season."

The municipality received a complaint in April 2010 about Mr. Lowry's property. An order was issued about three months later after an inspection.

"The order expired resulting in the file being forwarded for legal action," a report to council explained. "Due to unforeseen circumstances charges did not go forward."

3. The nature of the link between hearing loss and dementia shown in the research is unknown but a common pathological mechanism may underlie both.

Even though more research is needed when considering this intriguing question, my recommendation is to have your hearing tested periodically by a qualified audiologist and treat hearing loss early.

The new order was issued in November 2013 after an inspection in October 2013.

Mr. Lowry agreed to co-operate with Mr. Bevis to make things work.

"This is my hobby, not my business," Mr. Lowry told the council meeting. "You're talking legal here with lawyers and that. I don't want to go there at all."

Council's motion to uphold the order was defeated.

In a separate file, the municipality issued a demolition order concerning an unsightly and dangerous property off Cove Road in Conquerall Bank.

An "old house" was ordered demolished "and the demolition debris must be totally removed from the property," said a report to council explained. The municipality would "undertake the work necessary to clean up the property and the costs associated with the same shall be placed as a first lien on the property" if the matter wasn't dealt with within the allotted time of the order.
